Welcome GSC Students & Faculty

Young men and women from many sections of Georgia are assembling this week at Georgia Southern College in Statesboro to begin the new Fall term. They come seeking to improve their learning and to prepare themselves for a better place in society in whatever field of endeavor that they choose. Many new faces will be found among the faculty too as our college grows both in scope and in size.

To all of these we give a "Hearty Welcome."

Too often many of us take our college for granted seldom realizing the tremendous impact that it has on the cultural, social and economic life of the community.

You don't have to look hard to see what they mean to us when they help fill our churches, visit our merchants and otherwise take their place as citizens for a year in the life of our community.

It's good to have them back again and to know that they are a part of us.

Down With The Signs

With the run-off in the Democratic Primary set for Wednesday, September 26th the end of our season of politics is near at hand. It has been an active campaign, complete with speeches, barbecues, volleys of printed material, TV appearances galore not to mention personal appeals and radio broadcasts. This is now for all purposes over. But there remains the problem of the candidates signs that have been generously plastered on nearly every telephone pole, highway intersection and almost everywhere else that more than a dozen people a day were expected to pass. These sometimes colorful and bright placards remain to haunt us and in our opinion are unsightly.

Now we don't know just whose job this is but our town and countryside would look a whole lot cleaner if we would let them now come down.

had yet thought about television and the good man always won in the end, and that was the way it was supposed to happen, they said in Sunday School.

Hoot Gibson, who died the other day, also had his claim to fame. He shot through the bottom of his holster. That was something every kid in the nation who played cowboy had to adapt to. It was almost superhuman at the time. And that is one thing many remember about Hoot Gibson.

At his funeral recently, in Hollywood, gathered some of the oldtimers who are left. Ken Maynard and Bob Steele were among them. And they buried Hoot Gibson with Masonic rites. It just doesn't seem right, somehow, that death finally got Hoot Gibson. One doesn't like it, at all. It takes away a little bit of the old days.

There is something nostalgic in looking backward to the oldtime cowboys. And when one who was as widely known as "Hoot" Gibson dies, it's hard to take. The movies arrived in this country along with the exploits of our cowboys.

No doubt these old boys killed more bad men than ever inhabited the West and no doubt some of them were pretty far fetched. But whatever was wrong with them, they became heroes to millions of youngsters in the early days of the movies.

Tom Mix, Buck Jones, Jack Perrian, Hoot Gibson, Ken Maynard, Bob Steele, Tim McCoy and the like blazed across the screen of every small town in America in the twenties and thirties. Each had some special claim to fame.

Corny as it all was, it was a new era—the era of motion pictures, and it was fun. No one had yet thought about television and the good man always won in the end, and that was the way it was supposed to happen, they said in Sunday School.

The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

The Upper Room
THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 20
Read John 14:1-7

The light is still shining in the darkness, for the darkness has never put it out. (John 1:9, Goodspeed.)

We are living in a dark day, but the light that came into the world in the person of Jesus Christ cannot be put out. The enemies of Jesus were incapable of extinguishing the light of the world nineteen hundred years ago, and none can then have the ability to do it. There is no possibility of defeating Christ, now or ever.

I stood at Duque Falls in rapid attention. I heard the roar of the rushing water and saw the spray. But the noise and the spray were not the powerful stream of water itself.

This reminded me of the ongoing of Christianity, which Jesus set in motion. There are times when the roar seems so loud and the spray so spectacular that the tremendous program itself—the program of evangelizing the world—seems lost. But it is not so. The risen Lord is our absolute assurance of hope, progress, and finally the triumph of Christ and the kingdom of God.

PRAYER: Dear Father, grant us the strength that comes from the knowledge that Thou wilt not allow Thyself to be deceived. Use us in making Christ known to others and in encouraging them to accept Him as their personal Savior. In His name and for His sake. Amen.

Thoughts Of An Oldster

by MAUDE BRANNEN

Soundness
A mocking bird lives in my backyard, and he is a mischievous fellow, who lives beyond crumbs.

When I throw crumbs out, he hops down, eats his fill, flies to a nearby pear tree, and watches food. When the little birds try to eat, he jumps down, pecks them till they run away, then flies back to the tree. This goes on for hours.

This is apropos of nothing in particular, but birds are funny, so are people.

There is a word I love, integrity. The word means the whole. If a man has integrity, he has moral soundness, honesty, uprightness.

His word is as good as his bond, as the old men of my young days used to say.

The greatest compliment that can be paid a man is to say he has integrity.

The man of integrity is friends with himself. He cannot be false to himself or to anybody else. The poet Shakespeare says:

"To thine own self be true,
And it follows as the night the day,
Thou canst not then be false to any man."

The man of integrity chooses the ethical rather than the legal. Legality and justice do not always walk hand in hand. "The Ten Commandments will not budge, and stealing will continue to be stealing."

If a man has integrity, he will not sell himself at any price: not money, favor, or position.

He always stands up for his convictions.

He never follows the herd. He never allows himself to be jumped into a chasm.

This man can always hold up his head, unashamed; he has his self respect.

Judas thought the thirty pieces of silver would make him happy when he sold the Christ. But he had sold himself not Christ.

The person who sells himself always becomes the slave of the giver of bribes.

I wonder if Castro knows he is chained to Russia?

There is a death bed waiting for us all. Many of these beds hold men and women who still have memories which conjure up specters of remorse and regret. Their tortured souls cannot rest in peace. As Lady Macbeth learned all the waters of Lethe could not wash her soul clean.

Isn't it peculiar that middle age always starts a few years earlier he lived, and then some. For the other fellow.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
Christ is our sure hope because nothing can ever defeat Him.

Retreat From Reality

The death of a highly touted movie actress recently publicized by thousands of galleys of type will fill the coffers of the movie houses when her pictures are shown. Wives will go to shed a tear for the departed one whose curves and cubicles created a sensation when she appeared in public. The old maids will go to chew nails and question the reasons that cause the dead to create more interest than the living on parade.

How empty some lives are of reason, ambition and desire to help others. The deceased so called "star" had no pride of ancestry and leaves no good for posterity. Just an enlarged torso at places on the anatomy that aroused the passions of men and the envy of women. As calloused as the hands of a daily laborer, as forgetful of her promise as a sinner is of right, as dumb as the knots on a pine, as indiscreet as a pigeon on a wire, as lacking in public appearance as the intimates of 2008, as unfaithful to the promise she made to three husbands as the new moon, as lascivious in appearance as a Theda Bara on an Egyptian queen or a Catharine of Russia, what did she give to the world except evil thoughts. No wonder a good God would not permit her to become a mother and turned his face away, because there was enough of the kind she was.

She may have had some of the gold that came from King Solomon's mines, but she taught the theories and practices of a Jezebel. Christmas may be a rough time for actors, newspapermen and harlots but a buxom "star" alone in death is lonelier still when in a whole life time no monuments to death, charity in a life time well spent.

A nude in a bathing pool may excite the curiosity of the gold-fish and a few rich morons but in the end has no more value than a plank steak placed on the grave of a pauper who starved to death. A life wasted is as unimportant as a wink at your sweetheart in the dark or the gossip you hear from a convict just out of solitary confinement.

Echoes come back to us from the past as repeated sounds, some as full of sound as a big drum, others as whispers from a secret world. The loud sounds are of retribution, the soft ones of commendation. The former often sounds like the choir practice of all the evil thoughts of mankind. Can it be that all this blow up of publicity is the work of temptation to dissolve the resistance of the living that flesh may become the master of the mind?

If a house is built on a street named "Protestant" and the furniture comes from the factory of "Picklesness," then the pretended lives lived therein will go the way of roses kept too long in the vase. Their entire journey through life proves to be no more interesting or worthy than a vacation spent in a graveyard or a conversation with the dead.

The "feminine" and "misunderstanding" that the lady and egotist speak of is nothing more than a worthless self-appraisal that totals zero and the lack of ability to associate with worth.

Bridesmaids Luncheon For Harriet Hays

On Saturday at noon, Mrs. C. L. Cross and daughter, Miss Ed Cross, entertained at a beautiful luncheon honoring the lovely bride-elect and her attendants at their home at Jossell Farms.

The dining table was covered with an exquisite linen cloth and the centerpiece was an arrangement of white carnations interspersed with turquoise net. The arrangement was centered with twin hearts covered with silvered turquoise ribbon. Turquoise candles in silver holders flanked the centerpiece. Lace cards featured double hearts in tiny pearls and net.

Several bridegroomsmen were joyed and Miss Cross composed and read to the bride-elect a wish from each of her attendants.

Miss Hays presented them with sterling charms embossed with miniature bridesmaids and engraved with her wedding date.

The hostess gave the honored silver bon bon dish.

Luncheon Honors Bill Oland, Groomsmen and Out of Town Guests

Mrs. J. M. Fudge, Jr. and Mrs. M. W. Miller honored the bridegroom, his groomsmen, their wives and other out of town guests at a buffet luncheon Saturday at the beautiful and spacious home of Mrs. Fudge on the Albany Road.

Handsome arrangements of yellow chrysanthemums and gladioli decorated the dining room. About thirty guests enjoyed the delightful occasion.

Hays-Bland Wedding Party And Guests Entertained At Buffet Supper

Mrs. Felix Fudge, Mrs. Louise Hearn and Mrs. Elton Smith entertained at a buffet supper Saturday afternoon at five o'clock. The dining table was overlaid with an imported linen and lace cloth. The handsome centerpiece was an arrangement of pink gladioli and carnations. The buffet was adorned with silver compotes holding pink carnations.

The living room was decorated with artistic arrangements of yellow chrysanthemums, gladioli and roses.

About fifty, including the wedding party and out of town guests, enjoyed a delicious supper at the beautiful and spacious Fudge home on the Baulbridge Road.

Monday the Banquet Room of Mrs. Bryant's Kitchen was the scene of a Brunch honoring Miss Sandra Williams, an October bride-elect.

Hostesses were Mrs. Homer Cason, Miss Linda Cason, Mrs. Lillian Blanchard and Miss Barbara Blanchard.

The long table held an exquisite centerpiece formed of double white althea in a silver bowl, interspersed with tulle rosettes. Miniature ivy cascaded the full length of the table.

Silver candleholders held white tapers. Place cards tied with white tulle, featured a bride and groom.

A milk glass candy dish was the gift to Sandra from her hostesses. They also presented her a little booklet with The Ten Commandments for the Bride, with a sketch of her on the booklet, made by a friend, Ida Waters. Linda read these commandments to Sandra.

Attending this brunch were the honoree, Miss Williams, her mother, Mrs. Raymond Williams, Misses. Linda Cason, Fay Bennett Brannen, Judy Smith, Kay Preston, Lynn Storey, Kay Minkovitz, Mickey Roberts, Lynn Collins, Wanda Conner, Mrs. Billy Seawear, Mrs. Bill Harper, Mrs. Hollis Cannon and Mrs. J. Alpha Omega Chapter Of Beta Sigma Phi Met With Mrs. Johnson

The Alpha Omega Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held their first fall meeting at the beautifully re-decorated home of Mrs. Minnie Lee Johnson on Broad Street, Monday evening, September 10th.

The delicious supper was served on the patio, which was a perfect setting for the Hamburgers, baked beans, potato salad, chocolate pound cake and iced tea.

The speaker for the evening was Lane Johnston, whose topic was The United Foundation for Crippled Children, of which he is Chairman for the drive this year. He spoke interestingly of the facilities and benefits of Warm Springs and brought out many other facts of the work of the Foundation.

Members attending were Shirley Steinberger, Ernestine Roberts, Mrs. C. P. Martin gave a very inspiring devotional, followed by group singing. Miss Janie Jones, secretary gave a full year report of the most interesting activities of the past year. Looking back it seems as though the Senior Citizens have really had a big year with many more such activities already being planned for the future. Mrs. Henry Lanier, treasurer gave an account of the many while projects successfully

For Total-Electric Customers Georgia Power Company Announces an Important ELECTRIC RATE DECREASE

We are very pleased to announce that the Georgia Public Service Commission has approved a new Total-Electric Rate. This plan offers a lower rate to most of our residential customers whose homes are total-electric.

The new rate is in line with our policy of keeping electricity the best bargain in your family budget. While the cost of living remains high and many prices continue to spiral upward, this dramatic cutback will bring total-electric living within easy reach of more families than ever before.

How Does the New Rate Work?

The Total-Electric Rate is available to you, as a residential customer, if all of the major appliances in your home are electrically operated, including cooking, water heating and house heating.

Our engineers will estimate carefully your annual electric usage. For any amount over 9,000 kilowatt-hours you will be charged only 1.2 cents per kilowatt-hour instead of the previous 1.6 cents.

Your estimated bill for the year will be divided by 12 to arrive at your monthly bill. You will then get 12 equal bills. You know how much your electricity will cost you every month. There are no peak bills—either in cold weather when heating costs usually rise or in hot weather when air conditioning and refrigeration work overtime.

At the end of the year, if you have used more or less electricity than we estimated, we will make the necessary adjustment.

Why a
